LETTER FROM OUR PREACHER

Beloved Community,

I frequently see the 21st century referred to as “The Age of Distraction.” And honestly, I see why. With our cell phones and smart watches, we can be bombarded with constant notifications. With 24-hour media, we never have far to look for someone who will try to tell us how to think or feel about any plethora of issues or for someone or something working to intentionally distract us so we can numb our thinking and feeling selves.

I think that’s why I love coming to Royal Oak First. Sure, there are still plenty of distractions, but they are real life distractions rather than digital ones. They are the distractions of laughing or crying babies and toddlers, the running of children, the stories and noises and smells of tragedy and triumph. They are the distractions of presence.

We will never live in a world without distraction, but we can still seek to practice presence. We can choose to listen to the people in front of us rather than the people we see through a screen. I am so grateful for the people who I run into every week who are here to be a listening ear and a helping hand, for the people choosing presence.

I am grateful for Myra, Paul, Mike, Larry, Tim, Kris, and others who volunteer time to make meals and prepare spaces to receive people. I’m grateful for Linda who brings joy as she answers phones and fills in wherever she can. I’m grateful for the team of people, including Griffin, Maria, Analisa, Fred, Mike (x3), Wayne and all the others, who practice and use music to create an atmosphere. I’m thankful for the choir who faithfully blesses us in worship.

This week I am especially grateful for Megan Grammatico and Jennifer Semivan who are stepping in to lead the adult choir and accompany the choir and congregation while we sing.

So, today, I thank all of you for making Royal Oak First a beloved community.

Grace and Peace,
